Water-Borne Shipping Advantages

Elkhart is only 68 miles from Benton Harbor Port which is the largest port on the Great Lakes, with a capacity of direct shipment to the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic. It also has rail service from all Class I Railroads. The St. Lawrence Seaway and the Inland Waterway system shipping can go directly to Michigan, Ohio, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois and other parts of Indiana. Indiana as a whole is ranked 11th in the nation for waterborne shipping and 6th in the United States domestic waterborne traffic. In addition, Indiana is served by two other ports in the southern part of the state.

Indiana Logistics Rankings

- Indiana ranks first in several key transportation and logistics metrics, including the number of pass-through interstates, its proximity to the median center of the U.S. population, the volume of rail-transported primary metals both originated and terminated, and its status as the largest producer of truck trailers
- Indiana ranks second place in largest dry and liquid cargo barge fleet, largest FedEx Express in the works and shipments received via rail and water by ton-mile
- Indiana ranks third place with freight railroads, truck tractor registrations, cargo and tonnage values shipped via multiple waterways, and the value of NAFTA rail exports
- Indiana ranks fourth in the number of line haul railroads, rail carloads carried, and switching/terminating railroads
- Indiana ranks fifth in long-distance trucking employment, ton-miles of shipments received via multiple modes, exports to Mexico via rail and rail trade with China
