GROH Architecture

Notable Tenents

CGHJ Architects started in 1975 when Gerry Curts formed an architectural firm with three partners which was called The Design Advocates. In 1992, Gerry invited Stephanie Gaines and Bob Hall to be his new partners, followed by Chuck a few years later and Curts Gaines Hall Jones Architects (CGHJ) was born. During their many years in business, talented architects, designers, draftsmen, administrators and technicians have passed through the firm. Many built their entire careers with CGHJ and others have been inspired to launch their own firms. One of those was Rob Glisson, who along with partner John Saldana, formed ROJO Architecture in 1998, another highly accomplished firm in Tampa. These two firms thrived in Tampa and built substantial bases of repeat clients.

Recently, the two firms merged to form a new company, GROH Architecture to strengthen both businesses and prepare for future growth. With the rebranding on November 1, 2022, Claudia Bernal of CGHJ Architects and Swapnali Salunke from ROJO Architecture were invited to become new principals of GROH Architecture.
