Second Street Crossing is located at the northwest corner of 2nd Street and Mace Boulevard in Davis, California.

This ±172,842 square foot community center is anchored by the trade area’s only Target and TJ Maxx. Ideally situated to serve approximately 40,000 residents in the eastern portion of the market, Second Street Crossing is a retail epicenter in the Davis trade area.

Conveniently located between San Francisco and Sacramento along the Interstate 80 corridor, the City of Davis is known as a unique, progressive, education-oriented community.

In addition, the City’s identity is closely tied to the University of California Davis (more than 36,000 students), which is internationally recognized for its contributions to life sciences, agriculture, veterinary medicine, biotechnology, medical technology and engineering.

Finally, the intersection is in the path of progress in the Davis market and is visible to approximately 141,500 cars per day along Interstate 80. Mace Boulevard is the trade area’s primary “ring road” that connects approximately ±26,287 commuters to Interstate 80 per day.
