WHY MASS TIMBER

Workbench offers a beautiful building solution with a conscientious choice that helps reach our collective reduction of carbon emissions, paving the way for a greener and more resilient built environment. The mass timber structure brilliantly showcases the biophilic properties of trees, creating a vibrant and aesthetically welcoming space.

INCREASE WELL-BEING

Long-term exposure to wood and natural elements within mass timber buildings has been shown to increase well-being, promote focused work and productivity, and reduce stress in occupants, a direct benefit to the occupants of Workbench.

LOW CARBON FOOTPRINT

As a renewable material, mass timber is less energy-intensive than concrete and steel, offering a plethora of environmental benefits. Mass Timber actively sequesters carbon dioxide, locking it away for the long term, thereby mitigating the greenhouse effect.

ABOUT THE SPONSORS

The vision for Workbench extends beyond its physical beauty and is sparked from the desire to create a hub in thriving East Austin, where tenants will be able to collaborate, share resources, and actively shape Austin's future.

Mark Vornberg, Principal at Dick Clark + Associates (DC+A) reached out to colleagues within the architecture, engineering, construction, and real estate community, who shared his vision for building a collaborative office and retail hub in East Austin. DC+A, Swinerton, Lindgren, Fort Structures, Beck-Reit Commercial, Legacy Lighting, and Art + Artisans have partnered as investors and tenants to develop Workbench. Construction broke ground in October 2024.

One of the team's early decisions was to design the structure using exposed mass timber, using a blend of glue-laminated timber (GLT) and cross-laminated timber (CLT). Mass timber construction has many sustainable attributes, creates a harmonious connection between nature and the built environment, and also reduces energy costs. The warmth of wood further invites inspiration, creativity, and productivity, enhancing the workplace with its biophilic qualities.

Another unique attribute to Workbench is that 66% of the project's tenant investors are women-owned or women-led businesses. It is estimated that only 39.1% of U.S. firms are women-led, as such, Workbench signifies a significant step forward for female empowerment and community building in Austin. As development partners, we strongly support women to continue shaping the future of Austin's business landscape.

We invite you into our shared space and look forward to shaping the future together.

Sincerely,

The Partners of Workbench
