Northwest Highlights

A unique long-term investment in the sought-after, high growth property north of Atlanta, GA

Atlanta Industrial Market

- In 2024, Atlanta recorded its third largest annual volume of leasing activity, outranked only by two monumental years of pandemic-related demand (2021 and 2022).
- Leasing volumes are up 62% year-over-year and notably, of the 52.1M SF of deals signed, almost two-thirds were new deals.
- The market-maintained stability throughout the year, averaging 3.6M SF of quarterly absorption, with annual absorption volumes up 59.7% year-over-year.
- Development activity continued to moderate with completion volumes down 22% year-over-year. While the year saw notable BTS and owner-built projects, speculative development accounted for 68.8% of annual completions.
- Despite a slowing development pipeline and strong absorption, availability and vacancy rates continue to rise, indicating that available and vacant supply could be picking up in 2nd-generation space.

Exceptional Submarket Dynamics Atlanta I-75 North Corridor

- The Atlanta I-75 North Corridor has an inventory of 163 MSF, representing one of the fastest growing submarkets in the SE with unprecedented tenant demand.
- The Northwest had a banner year of demand with leasing volumes reaching 8.8M SF, the largest volume on record.
- Heavily embedded tenant base from the robust volume of production and assembly operations and many high-finish R&D requirements drive rent growth for investors.
- High barriers to entry - rocky soil and difficult topography limit industrial development.
- I-75 North Corridor possesses the heaviest truck count in the state
- Second largest amount of industrial labor jobs in Atlanta.
 - Largest amount of resident workers.
 - Most affordable supply of labor.
- With a large production base, the reshoring of production operations to the US along with other foreign direct investments will drive outsized industrial performance in the I-75 North Corridor.

Appalachian Regional Port

- The Appalachian Regional Port (ARP) is located less than 40 miles north of the subject property.
- APR opened in August 2018 and has experienced explosive growth with a port capacity of 50,000 containers per year.
 - 10-year development plan that will double the capacity to 100,000 containers per year.
- APR sits on 42 acres in NW Georgia's Murray County and provides a powerful new gateway of import goods to the Sunbelt and Midwest, along with export goods to all global markets.
 - This will continue to drive tenant requirements to the I-75 N submarket as the port grows.
- With easy access to I-75 and US-411, both Birmingham and Nashville are within a 3-hour drive, and downtown Atlanta can be reached in under 1 hour.
- The inland port offers exclusive CSX service on a direct, 288-mile rail route to/from the Port of Savannah's Garden City Terminal.
