HUNTSVILLE/MADISON MARKET OVERVIEW

Huntsville is one of the fastest-growing metros in the U.S., driven by its booming aerospace and technology sectors and an influx of high-income households. Strong population growth, combined with relatively low housing costs, continues to fuel retail demand well above the national average.

The retail market remains exceptionally tight with just a 4.0% availability rate—well below the U.S. benchmark—creating a supply-constrained environment where quality sites are scarce. Developers are racing to meet demand, with more than 270,000 SF of new retail delivered in the past 12 months and another 250,000 SF underway. Even with new deliveries, prime locations near growth engines like Clift Farm and major national retailers remain in high demand.

Retail rents have grown at 2.4% annually, outpacing national averages, as tenants compete for limited space. With nearly 40,000 new housing units added in the last five years, Huntsville's expanding residential base is set to drive continued retail absorption—making this 2.15-acre Home Depot outparcel an ideal opportunity for developers seeking to capture the market's momentum.

Explosive Growth – Huntsville is the fastest-growing city in Alabama and one of the fastest in the U.S.

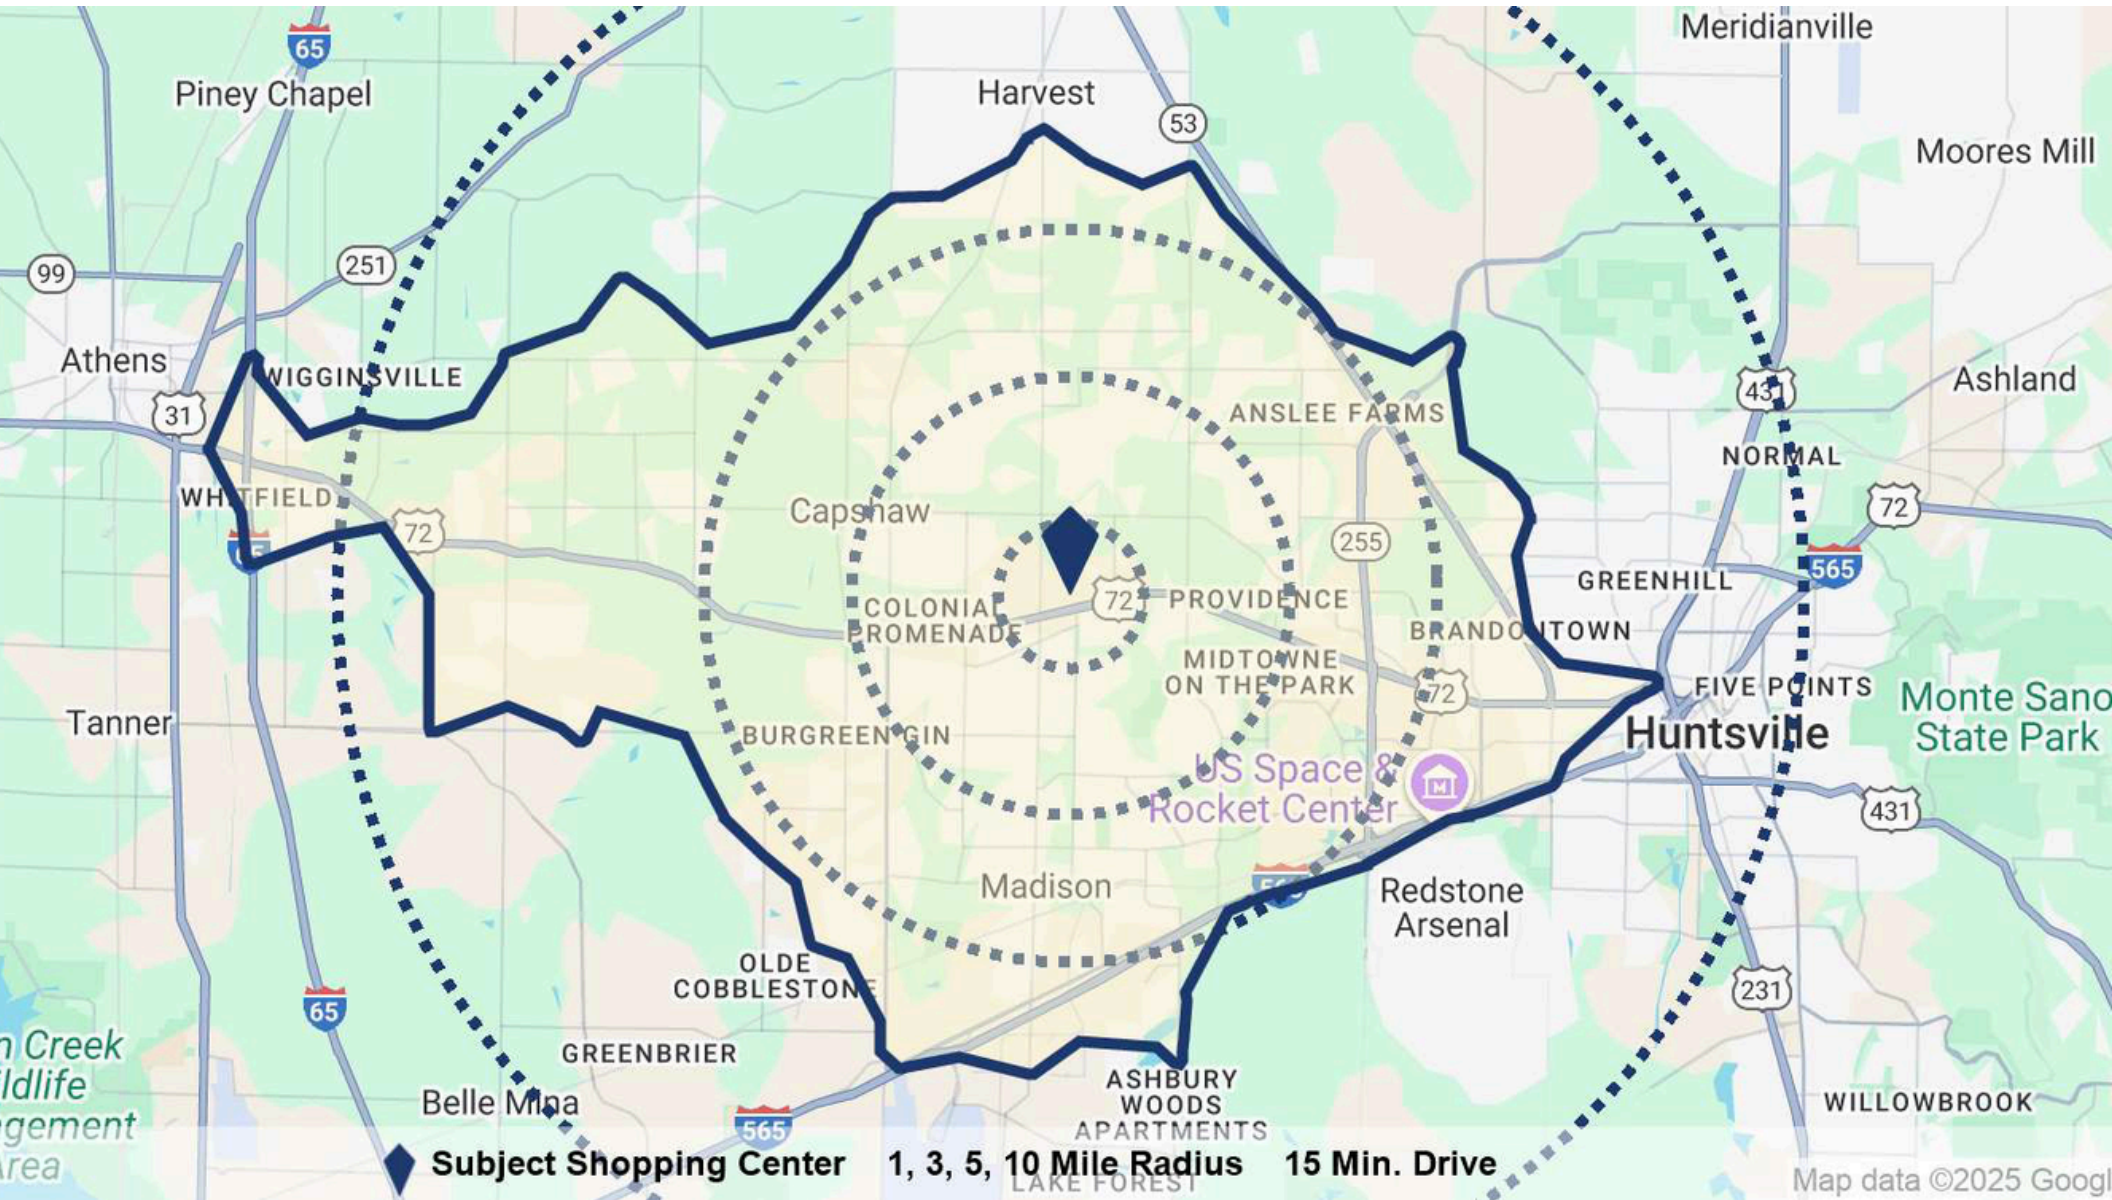

270,000 SF of new retail delivered in the last 12 months and another 250,000 underway.

2.4% Annual rent growth and nearly 40,000 new housing units added in the last 5 years.
