Introduction to Columbia, South Carolina

Located in central South Carolina, Columbia is the State capital and is the largest city in the state. Columbia, S.C. is characterized by a rapidly growing population of college students, young professionals, families, and retirees, and is one of the most business-friendly states in the southeast. Additionally, South Carolina has also been recognized as one of the best states to retire by Forbes.

Home to the University of South Carolina, a supply of well-educated graduates provides a foundation for a stable workforce and allows for economic ingenuity and world-class research for the region's businesses. Businesses with a major presence in the region include Dominion Energy, Prisma Health, BlueCross BlueShield of SC, Wells Fargo, TD Bank, Colonial Life, UPS and Amazon.

Columbia is home to Fort Jackson, the Army's largest basic training facility. More than 3,500 active duty soldiers with 12,000 family members are assigned to the base and call the area home. Each weekend these family members fill Columbia's hotels as they visit for basic training graduations. Fort Jackson's total economic impact on South Carolina is estimated at $2.3 billion a year, according to a study by the University of South Carolina's Darla Moore School of Business. The study said Fort Jackson directly employs 7,620 people and is ultimately responsible for 20,000 jobs. The Columbia Metropolitan Airport estimates that 20 percent of its traffic is related to the military.

Columbia Metropolitan Airport (CAE) has seen steady growth in recent years, with a 17% increase in passengers from 2018 to 2019. Passenger airlines including Delta, American Eagle, US Airways, and United Airlines serve the Columbia metro area out of CAE. Air freight companies operating from CAE include Airborne Express, Federal Express, Mountain Air Cargo, Piedmont, Bankair, and United Parcel Service. UPS selected Columbia as the home of their southeast regional air cargo hub in 1994.

Columbia is served by CSX Transportation & Norfolk Southern rail lines. Passenger service in South Carolina is provided by Amtrak. The Port of Charleston, just 112 miles from Columbia, is accessed by both rail lines and is one of the busiest container ports along the Southeast and Gulf coasts. The region is also just 105 miles from Inland Port Greer in the Upstate.

Columbia's central location within the state makes it easily accessible from a large number of major cities in the southeast. With three major interstates converging in Columbia (I-77, I-26, & I-20) and 24-hour ground access to more than 66% of the U.S. market, it is home to a number of logistics companies and distribution centers, including Amazon.

Positive Business Climate

Columbia has been recognized as an exceptional city to start and grow a business. There are over seventy foreign affiliated companies and fourteen Fortune 500 Companies located in the metro area. Columbia has also been recognized in various publications for its attractiveness to both new businesses and job seekers.

Home to a number of businesses that support the community, as well as the state government, Columbia is also host to the US Army's largest, and most active, initial entry training installation at Fort Jackson. In addition to the South Carolina state government, major employers include the Prisma Health hospital system, BlueCross BlueShield of SC, Lexington Medical Center, the University of South Carolina, Dominion Energy, Walmart, and UPS, which operates its Southeastern Regional Hub out of the Columbia Metropolitan Airport (CAE).

Columbia is home to a growing cluster of insurance, technology, and service industries. In 2012, Amazon completed construction of a 1.2 million-square-foot fulfillment center in West Columbia, S.C., approximately 5.6 miles from downtown Columbia. The facility, one of the company's largest on the east coast employs approximately 2,000 people, and represents an overall investment of approximately 4.3 billion in the region, including infrastructure and employee compensation.

- The Columbia Metro area was selected as one of "America's 50 Hottest Cities" for business relocations and expansions by Bloomberg Business Week.
- The Columbia Metro area was selected as one of America's "Best Places to Live and Work" by Expansion Management and rated as a "Five-Star Community".

Employment

As the state capital, the largest employer group in Columbia is the State of South Carolina, which employs approximately 77,000 people. The State government provides Columbia with stable employment levels and steady employment growth, which helps to insulate the city in economic downturns. It also has helped to insure the strength and stability of Columbia's middle class.

In addition to the state government, major employment groups include health care providers, educational institutions like the University of South Carolina, as well as insurance and banking firms.

Within the state of South Carolina there are over 1,200 active internationally-owned facilities. Businesses from Australia, Belgium, Canada, China, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, and the United Kingdom all take advantage of the strong transportation network and wonderful quality of life. Since 2011, these companies have invested over $19 billion in South Carolina, bringing 42,000 new jobs to the state.

University of South Carolina

With a nearly 35,000 student population at the Columbia campus and a total enrollment of 52,548, the University of South Carolina has a major economic impact on the region as a whole. Boasting more than 300 degree programs, and sitting on a 290-acre campus in the heart of Columbia, USC has recently received an award from US News & World Report for being one of the ten “most promising and innovative” colleges and universities.

Academically, the University of South Carolina’s Darla Moore School of Business has been recognized for 22 consecutive years as the number one undergraduate business degree by U.S. News & World Report.

Additionally, Kiplinger’s Personal Finance and The Princeton Review have both awarded USC with recognition of their quality academics and affordable costs, as being one of the best values in public universities. Other top ranked programs include engineering, exercise science, nursing, and health education.
