LIVINGSTON, CA

It is situated in the Central Valley, about 25 miles south of Modesto and 16 miles northwest of Merced.

Livingston has a downtown area that is recognized for its unique character and provides for mixed-use activity.

It is characterized by local eateries and shops, many of which are family-owned and have been in operation for decades. Livingston's location is considered ideal by some who desire small-town living with access to the amenities of larger cities. Highway 99, a major freeway artery, traverses the city and provides connections to regional destinations, according to the City of Livingston. San Francisco, the Pacific Coast, and the Sierra Nevada Mountains are all within a two-hour drive. The economy of Livingston is intertwined with the agricultural industry of Merced County, which boasts a $1.75 billion in annual products and $6.5 billion in economic impacts. Notable agricultural businesses in Livingston include the headquarters of Foster Farms, a major poultry producer in the western United States, and Joseph Gallo Farms, which owns the largest dairy herd in the United States. The area is also well-known for sweet potato and grape production. Livingston is experiencing growth with new residential and commercial development, evolving into a premier ethnically diverse, residential, commercial, and industrial center in Merced County and the Central Valley.
